

Why Was ASPE's Center For SP Methodology Created?

You spoke and we heard you!

ASPE members have asked for online learning resources that support best practices in SP methodology. This curriculum should also include a knowledge-based exam designed to help measure and document a learner's comprehension and professional development journey.

In fact, the 2018 ASPE Member Needs Assessment asked, "What benefits do you think ASPE should provide to its members that it currently does not?" and this common theme was shared by many of you:

"Ideally there would be a defined path and certificate program for new SP Educators that could be completed at least partially online so that new members could join and work through the materials they need to start their programs and be connected to willing peer mentors."

Based on this feedback, the ASPE Board of Directors appointed a specific task force to explore how the association could best address this member need. The task force reviewed content and curriculum from within the association and from the field at large. It was determined that the recently developed ASPE curriculum does reflect the Standards of Best Practice and represents key cornerstones of learning around SP methodology.

With courses, lessons, and presentations being finalized, the Board of Directors is excited to announce the premier launch of the "ASPE Center for SP Methodology!"
